26 August 2009

Most of you probably know that the month of August is holiday season in the UK, which means that this is the time when we really root for the sun to shine and pray that the wind and rain will remain at bay. The kids are out for their 6 week break from school so the parks and shops have a different atmosphere as they are shared during the day with children. It is also the time when a lot of people go away for their holidays, although the recent economic difficulties are encouraging many to enjoy their holidays at home this year.

After three months of constant activity, with event after event, we have finally entered into a welcomed "slower" period. At last some of us have been able to have a much needed rest. My P.A., Magaly Sancho has been able to have the entire month off, and Les Leeder has had a week to himself. In a few days Wanda and I are having a weekend away, but we will not have much more than that, since I will be travelling quite extensively during the months of September and October. In any case, it's nice when things slow down a bit.

There is still much to do and issues to deal with. We have been attempting to do some much needed maintenance around both the office and the church building. Unfortunately, we had a plumbing problem that resulted in a flood in my office. I was at a wedding reception when I received a phone call informing me that there was water coming into my office. inch of water on my floor! We eventually fixed the problem and are now waiting for the ceiling to completely dry out so that we can repair and redecorate. I'm glad that this happened after our European Conference instead of before.

We began to refurbish the kitchen and utility room at the office in May and are continuing the work at a much slower pace. The main kitchen is getting close to completion and has a newly tiled floor, cabinets, electrics and a sink. We still have a lot to do in the utility room and will also add a second toilet where the pantry used to be. I am hoping that we will complete this stage by the end of the summer, but we also have some work to do with some of the windows, so we'll see how it goes. Please pray that God will supply the necessary finances to complete all that needs doing.

Still much to do in the utility room!

In His service,

Freddie
